

"What do these stones mean?"

Joyce's new book – Publication Date 31st July 2009

Joyce writes:

The inspiration for this book came over a year ago when I was reading the account given in Joshua 4:20-24, of how the Israelites crossed the river Jordan on dry land. This miracle occurred as the Spirit of God cut off the flow of water, giving a safe crossing for a million people. The thing which stood out was the instruction to pick up twelve large stones from the riverbed, and to set them up in the Promised Land as a memorial of God's miraculous deliverance. God spoke to my heart and asked, "What twelve life-lessons would you identify to be your memorial stones?" and I began to ponder that question. I have known Jesus for more than fifty years and He has taught me many things. I chose these lessons as memorial stones. I hope you will be helped as you see God's dealings with me, and that reading my story will encourage your faith. As Joshua 4:24 says, "He did this so that all the peoples of the earth might know that the hand of the Lord is powerful and so that you might always fear the Lord your God."

Charles writes: This book is full of testimonies and practical life situations. In addition you can visit our new website and listen to a number of short messages which will add further insight to many of the chapters.
